AMBER LOUVIER

Amber Louvier is a Human Resources Consultant with Holden Law Group. She partners with employers to develop practical, business-focused solutions across human resources, recruitment, employee relations, compliance, and workforce operations. She brings a hands-on approach to helping organizations strengthen their employment practices while creating processes that are effective, scalable, and aligned with business needs.

Human Resources Experience

Ms. Louvier has extensive experience supporting organizations throughout the employee lifecycle, including human resource compliance, workforce planning, recruitment and selection, onboarding, employee relations, and performance management. Her experience includes both strategic HR leadership and hands-on HR operations, with a particular focus on helping growing organizations build and strengthen their HR infrastructure. She has developed HR policies and procedures, implemented HR and recruiting systems, established onboarding and performance management processes, created compensation structures, supported employee relations matters, and partnered with managers and executives on a wide range of workforce situations. Prior to joining Holden Law Group, Ms. Louvier provided HR and recruitment leadership to organizations throughout California, with significant experience supporting the construction, engineering, and professional services industries. In one long-term consulting engagement, she helped support an organization through significant growth, developing much of its HR and talent acquisition infrastructure as the company expanded.

Ms. Louvier also has extensive talent acquisition experience and has led recruitment efforts across a broad range of professional, technical, operational, and leadership positions. Her recruiting background provides her with a unique perspective on the connection between hiring, onboarding, employee development, retention, and long-term workforce planning.

Through her consulting work, she has partnered closely with owners, executives, managers, and employees to provide practical HR guidance while balancing compliance requirements with the operational realities of the workplace.
